

The Sense of Giving

By: Gitty Zee

Giving is an action I cherish.
Being a giver makes my heart sing.
Giving is the delight of my life;
Being a giver is a beautiful thing.

Giving sounds like a conversation,
A rich communication between two.
When I give, you give to me,
Creating a bond of connectivity that's true.

Giving feels like a snuggly blanket;
Like a hug so cozy and warm.
Like the rays of sun shining on my face,
The shelter in the face of a storm.

Giving smells like a fresh bouquet of flowers
With an aroma that fills the air.
A delicious, expansive scent
That makes me want to share and share.

Giving looks like a picture
Of two hands clasped together,
Tied in a bond of oneness -
A unity that lasts forever.

Giving tastes like a candy
With a delightful, unique flavor;
A taste you hope to experience again
A sweetness you wish to savor.

Giving reminds me of a cake,
Freshly baked by me,
That tastes of the knowledge of
My determination and capability.
